Nestled in the rural hamlet of Bruggan, just moments from the charming village of Ruan Minor and iconic fishing cove of Cadgwith, this handsome, detached four bedroom period home is well proportioned throughout and offers a pleasing combination of character, charm and modern comfort.

A light and sociable open-plan kitchen and dining area, fitted with sleek polished granite work surfaces and a generous range of cabinetry, would seem ideal for family dining and entertaining. A local stone fireplace with granite hearth and an oil-fired Rayburn add warmth and character, while oil-fired central heating and double glazing ensure comfort throughout the seasons.

Undoubtedly the heart of the home is the wonderfully spacious lounge, where beamed ceilings and a truly magnificent Inglenook fireplace, complete with bread oven and timber mantle, create a striking focal point for those cosy evenings in. The triple-aspect conservatory, with a vaulted ceiling and French doors opening into the garden, is flooded with natural light and provides a nice connection to the front garden. Exposed stonework, a window seat and deep cills enhance the appeal and charm, whilst a useful utility area and downstairs cloakroom cater for everyday practicalities. Upstairs, there are four bedrooms (including a master with an en suite) which are complemented by a separate family bathroom and separate w.c.

Outside, the gardens are neatly landscaped and well tended, bordered by mature trees and shrubs, with a pleasant patio and seating area perfect for relaxing on warmer evenings. Two summer houses, both with power and light, offer excellent versatility, with one particularly well suited to conversion into an office, studio, or informal guest accommodation, subject to any necessary consents. Off-road parking for a number of vehicles completes this delightful and characterful family home.

The accommodation in brief comprises an entrance porch, cloakroom, kitchen / dining room, lounge and a conservatory, whilst upstairs there are four bedrooms (master en suite), a w.c and a bathroom. The property benefits from double glazing and oil fired central heating.

Cadgwith has its origins in medieval times as a collection of fish cellars in a sheltered south east facing coastal valley with a shingle cove. Fishing subsidised local farmers' livelihoods. From the 16th Century the village became inhabited with fishing as the main occupation. Subsequently houses, lofts, capstan houses and cellars, constructed of local stone or cob walls and thatched or slated roofs, were built along the beach and up the sides of the valley leading to Cadgwith's characteristic Cornish fishing village appearance. In recent times a very small Anglican Church was built dedicated to St Mary. Today Cadgwith functions as a small fishing cove with fishermen seen bringing in their haul and working on their boats. Also the Cove has an extremely popular public house which is home to the famous Cadgwith Singers, who are well known for their repertoire of traditional folk songs. For day to day needs the close by village of Ruan Minor boasts an active community with many clubs, societies and organisations, primary school, local store/post office, Anglican Church, Methodist Chapel and doctor's surgery.

In the area is the National Trust's picturesque Kynance Cove, the village of The Lizard, which is mainland Britain's most Southerly Point and the stretches of golden sands at Kennack. Comprehensive schooling is available in the nearby village of Mullion, which lies approximately four miles distant, where there is a doctors' surgery, pharmacy and a good selection of shops.

The market town of Helston is approximately ten miles away and includes a good range of amenities having a sports centre with indoor swimming pool and a variety of national shops and supermarkets.
